HOORVIA - MOOD LOG CHART: PRINTABLE DAILY MENTAL HEALTH TRACKER

Quick Reference Cheat Sheet · A4 Printable

Home, Family & Health · Sheet #1

Check-In Moment	What to Log	Scale / Format	Why It Matters
Morning mood	Overall mood on waking	1-10 (1 = awful, 10 = great)	Sets a baseline; reveals how sleep quality shapes your day
Evening mood	Overall mood before bed	1-10	The gap between morning and evening shows what the day did to you
Sleep hours	Hours slept + quality	Hours + Poor / OK / Good	Poor sleep is the single biggest predictor of next-day low mood
Energy level	Physical and mental energy	1-10	Energy and mood track closely - low energy days need less load
Stress / anxiety	Current stress or anxiety level	1-10	Spots buildup early, before stress becomes a crisis
Trigger event	What happened before a mood dip	Short note	Naming triggers lets you plan around them next time
Positive moment	Best moment of the day	Short note	Trains your brain to notice good events, not just bad ones
Coping strategy used	What you did to feel better	Short note	Builds a personal menu of strategies that actually work
Physical activity	Exercise or movement	Minutes + type	Even a 10-minute walk reliably lifts mood for hours
Social connection	Meaningful interaction	Yes / No + who	Connection protects against low mood - isolation is a warning sign
Caffeine & alcohol	Stimulants and depressants	Drinks + time	Caffeine after noon wrecks sleep; alcohol mimics and worsens anxiety
Overall day rating	The day as a whole	1-10 + one word	One glance back per week reveals patterns invisible day to day

PRO TIP: Two Minutes, Twice a Day: Log at breakfast and bedtime - speed beats detail; a simple 1-10 scale you fill in wins over a perfect form you skip.
